Specifying your file extension When you save your image as a file format that's compatible with a program, that program automatically creates a file with a predefined file extension, just like a real file with a predefined extension (such as JPG) is created by a standard image editor. Your operating system or computer program recognizes that file extension and displays the file as an image for you to view, edit, or print. You need to make sure that you write the file extension to the image itself, either by choosing File → Save or directly in the image editing program. If you try to save the image with an extension _other_ than that of the file format, Photoshop won't know what

The present invention generally relates to devices useful in orthopedic surgery. More specifically, the present invention relates to an apparatus and method of use for intra-operative reduction and fixation of bones and bone fragments. Orthopedic surgery often requires reduction and fixation of bones and/or bone fragments. In order to provide the best reduction or re-positioning of the bone or bone fragment during a medical procedure, the surgeon must have a device capable of securely holding the bone or bone fragment in position during the surgical procedure. In most cases, a fixation clamp or clamp is applied to the bone or bone fragment with the aid of a clamping guide. The clamping guide is generally supplied with the clamp and is applied to the bone or bone fragment to mark the position at which the bone or bone fragment will be positioned prior to the application of the clamp. A typical clamp includes a handle with a body extending from one side of the handle. The body includes a jaw which includes a tapered front edge having an opening for receiving the bone or bone fragment. The body also includes opposing sides that diverge in the direction of the tapered edge such that when the clamp is applied to the bone or bone fragment, the edges of the jaws converge to securely grip the bone or bone fragment. The jaws are typically biased to a closed position with a spring, such as a nickel-titanium spring. Often the bone or bone fragment must be fixed to a bone or bone fragment during the medical procedure. The fixation of the bone or bone fragment is usually performed with a clamp and a clamping guide. The clamping guide is applied to the bone or bone fragment, a tool is attached to the clamp and the clamp is applied to the bone or bone fragment thereby drawing the jaws of the clamp together and firmly against the bone or bone fragment. Once the clamping guide is applied to the bone or bone fragment, the surgeon is required to adjust the position of the jaws of the clamp, as the position of the jaws are determined by the position of the clamping guide. In many cases, adjustment of the jaws of the clamp is time consuming and cumbersome. Consequently, the reduction and fixation of a bone or bone fragment using a clamp and a clamping guide takes an undue amount of time and is cumbersome and limiting in many cases.Clinton's Vocal Opponent Calls on Hispanics to Leave U.S. for Mexico By Jon Dougherty Rep. Patti Smith serves up some 'humble pie' at Tea Party rally President Barack Obama was in Chicago for a campaign rally Saturday, but that wasn't the only thing happening in the Windy City. Others that joined the President included Oscar-winning actor George Clooney, former President Bill Clinton and celebrity chef Marcus Samuelsson. The rally was part of Obama's Midwest Swing. Obama visited a rally in Chicago on Friday and then went on to Wisconsin, and will arrive at the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines on Sunday. The lineup in Chicago included an appearance from singer-songwriter Patti Smith, a singer who might not be entirely familiar to many younger people. She joined the President for a song and she did sing a song with him. Smith grew up in the same Brooklyn neighborhood that spawned the Ramones and the Sex Pistols, but she's also known for her first album, "Neon Bible," and the New Wave rock sound of "Greetings From Asbury Park, N.J."Diphenyleneiodonium chloride induces glioma cell apoptosis via ROS/Akt/mitogen-activated protein kinase-dependent inhibition of NF-kappaB p65. Diphenyleneiodonium chloride (DPI), an iodonium compound, was previously demonstrated to inhibit the proliferation of a number of cancer cells. However, the mechanism by which DPI induces apoptosis in cancer cells remains unclear. To address this issue, we examined the effects of DPI on the viability and apoptosis of human glioma U251 cells, which express both nuclear factor-kappaB (NF-kappaB) p65 and cyclooxygenase-2 (COX-2). DPI markedly inhibited the growth of U251 cells in a dose- and time-dependent manner. The expression of COX-2 and phosphorylated Akt was associated with U251 proliferation. Furthermore, we found that DPI induced apoptosis of U251 cells, which was associated with the activation of apoptosis signal-regulating kinase 1, cytochrome c release, phosphatidylserine exposure, and caspase-3 activation. In addition, DPI treatment of U251 cells induced the generation of reactive oxygen species (ROS), which was suppressed by the ROS scavenger N-acetylcysteine (NAC). Similarly, DPI markedly decreased Akt phosphorylation. Import
