Polaroid® has a history of producing some of the most iconic photographic products. Where did the name “Polaroid” come from? Polaroid Corporation was founded by Edwin H. Land in 1947 and the first color photo printer that mass market consumers had in the USA was released in 1954. The series-produced Light-Sensitive Film called Polaroid Land Film was released at this time. Polaroid Corporation took a picture that showed an apple growing and the words below “Apples are happy!” The words, “Happy Birthday!”, show the date and year of 1958. The Year of the Apple was an important year for the company and this picture is often used to show the logo and history of the company. Many years later, in 1986, Polaroid Corporation added another to the series: the large-format paper printer called the Polaroid Land Camera (PLV). The PLV and Polaroid cameras were an important part of the marketing and success of the company. Polaroid Corporation received the ISO 9001: 2008 certification to provide high-quality products as a quality management system. Did you know? The first camera to be named as “polaroid” was the Photo-Flo² created by F. J. Murnau in 1927. The first camera to be called “Polaroid” was the Land Camera PL-1 (1958) The company that created the Polaroid Land Camera (PLV) said that it could print from any size of Polaroid film. In reality, the camera couldn’t print larger than 20”×15” on paper. Polaroid said that it could print from any size of Polaroid film and it could be large. After all, it was a new product for a mass market. To be able to print a larger format with instant film, a scanner was needed. Polaroid Corporation acquired the imaging technology and the equipment to process film to a negative called the PhotoFlo. The first full-color Polaroid Camera Company to accept Polaroid Photography was Polaroid Corporation in 1959. The Polaroid System 1000 camera followed in 1960. The 30X80 Series of Color Filters and Polaroid Film – Type 401/401A Color Filter Followed in 1964. The Polaroid System One and SX-70 system cameras in 1965 followed. In 1973, the first Typ 116E Scan 05a79cecff

Getty Images Arizona Cardinals running back Kenyan Drake has been hurt again, which is often the way it goes when you have a lot of miles running through your legs with less to show for it than you would like. But after missing last week's win over the San Francisco 49ers, Drake said that he did have some feeling in his right foot and he mentioned his heel in the locker room, according to Rod Gilmore of ESPN Radio in Arizona: Drake has gone over 240 carries in eight games this year, eclipsing 100 carries in each of the past three seasons. That's enough to get you hurt often, so we will see how long Drake is out this time around. The injury will need to be addressed since the Cards have very little in the way of proven running backs beyond the 34-year-old Chris Johnson and the 22-year-old it seems to be safe to assume will continue to accumulate touches.
